GREENSBORO ON VERGE OF A WATER FAMINE

Present Output of Reedy Fork and Horsepen Creeks Barely Sufficient to Supply Consumption — Streams are Growing Smaller Daily.

Despite the fact that but little noise has been made about the matter it is a fact that Greensboro is really facing a water famine unless copious rains soon swell the streams from which the water supply is secured. The city officials, aware of the serious situation that would face them should the drought continue, are already planning to put into operation every method of relief. It should be stated, however, that as long as the supply is as much as it is at present there will be plenty of water.

But the fact remains that during the past week, despite the fine rains that have fallen in this section, the streams have gradually become dryer and dryer. At present Reedy Fork does not contain as much water as Horsepen creek, while usually the stream is three times as large. Already a dam has been constructed across Reedy Fork and that stream circuited around so it would come into Horsepen creek just above the intake. Still the water of the two streams combined is not sufficient to keep the two pumps at the Reedy Fork station in operation and for a week the city has been at the expense of keeping one pump going night and day. Ordinarily two pumps are operated throughout the day and are shut down at night.

Yesterday the city commissioners, accompanied by Attorney Cooke and a representative of The Telegram went out to the plant to look into conditions, finding them as above stated. At the plant only one pump was being operated. The intake in Horsepen creek was then inspected and it was found that the one pump was taking nearly every drop of the water in the stream. The engineer was instructed to operate both pumps in order that the commissioners might note the result. Within less than half an hour not a drop of water was going down Reedy Fork below the junction of the two streams except what was oozing through the sand. The pipe carrying water from the intake to the cistern from which it is pumped to the reservoir was only half full and the cistern's supply exhausted. Commissioner Foushee, who has charge of the waterworks, then piloted Mayor Murphy and The Telegram representative across the swamp a hundred yards

SENATE WOOL BILL NOT ACCEPTABLE TO HOUSE DEMOCRATS

Rate Must be Further Scaled or no Wool Bill Will be Passed.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, July 28.—The wool bill as passed by the Senate yesterday is not acceptable to the Democrats of the House and the Senate will have to further scale the rate or no wool bill will be passed at this session. A solution rests with the Progressive Republicans in the Senate as the Democratic senators have expressed themselves as favoring low duties.

There is a strong sentiment in the House favoring going right ahead with further tariff revision while waiting on the Senate. The Democrats are enthused over the prospects of jamming through more tariff revision.

The House today proceeded with the consideration of the cotton schedule along the lines suggested by the Democratic caucus the other night. Chairman Underwood, who made the first speech, stated that the cotton schedule was a good bill and should it be passed by the President and become a law there would be no necessity for further revision along this line for several years.

MUCH INTEREST IN SELECTION OF THE TEXT BOOKS

Feared By Many That Commission Is Not Prepared For Task Before It, Several Members Being Prevented From Giving Full Time To Work.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, July 28.—With the near approach of August 3, the date on which the State Text Book Commission will begin its final sessions for the actual adoption of the text-books to be used in the public schools of the state during the next five years, the book men are reassembling here preparatory for the final onslaught for the adoption of the books they are representing.

There is much anxiety not only among the bookmen, but among citizens generally who have observed the progress of the preliminary work for adoption, as to readiness and completeness of the reports that will be submitted to the full text book commission by the members of the sub-commission upon whom is resting the responsibility of personal examination of the great number of books offered for adoption. The governor and council of state constitute the State Text Book Commission, and then there are six sub-commissioners, well known educators, the sub commission to recommend books after careful examination and to have equal vote with the state officers constituting the council of state in the final adoption.

Numbers of the latter have expressed their purpose to be largely guided in their votes on adoptions by the recommendations of the sub-commissioners. At the same time it is being pointed out that other duties have kept a number of the sub-commissioners out of the city on other missions during the several weeks past that their duties of examining text books here at a salary of $4 per day and expenses have been pending.

Special educational lectures in New York and elsewhere, summer normal school work and other things have taken the presence of one and another of them from the city, some for weeks at a time it is pointed out, and there is anxiety about the situation, especially in view of issues that have been raised as to dangerous books that may be pending for adoption and the importance of this book adoption as affecting vitally the rising generations in North Carolina.

The acuteness of the situation is somewhat relieved by the return of State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. Y. Joyner from his across-the-continent trip to attend the National Educational Association at San Francisco, the past three weeks. He will take right hold of the situation now, it is said, and round the preliminary work preparatory for the adoptions to be under way next week.

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR RALEIGH CAR LINE EXTENSION

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, July 28.—C. C. Jacobs, of Durham, has the contract for the two and a half mile extension of the Raleigh street railway system from Glenwood out to the Raleigh Country Club and to the hundred acre park that the street railway company will open up just beyond the club. He will begin the actual construction of the extension Tuesday and it is expected that the cars will be running to the club by October 1. The Raleigh Country Club house just opened cost $20,000 and the grounds and equipment and club house are equal to anything of the kind in this section of the country.

Results of War Game Held by Uncle Sam Will Be Kept Secret From Foreign Naval Experts.

The above picture shows the fore deck of the battleship Michigan, one of the score of battleships which comprised the great fleet which participated in the war game of attacking and defending the Atlantic coast. The rival forces did splendid work, for which their commanders praised them in reports to Washington. While in the newspaper dispatches victory was claimed for both sides, whether the attacking battleships were theoretically sunk or the defending craft destroyed will never be made public, as the naval strategy board believes the information would be too valuable to foreign naval experts.

HAITI

Revolutionists Encompass Capital and Fall of Government is Inevitable.

Special to Telegram.

Port Au Prince, Haiti, July 28.—The revolutionists have encompassed the Capital. President Simon appears to recognize that defeat is inevitable, but if he has left the capital it is unknown. It is believed that he planned to leave the city before its occupation by the enemy. In every battle the Revolutionists have been successful in their march on the capital. A great deal of rivalry for the presidency of the republic exists between the generals heading the rebel army.

Apple Crop Will Be Short.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, July 28.—While the apple crop in quite a number of the western counties is quite full the estimate is that taken the state over there will be not over a 30 per cent yield. In the Bushy Mountain region it is fine according to reports brought by Assistant State Horticulturalist S. B. Shaw, who is just back from that section. McDowell, Henderson, Yancey and others of the mountain counties also have fine yields.

RETURNS AS MYSTERIOUSLY AS SHE LEFT

Special to Telegram.

New York, July 28.—Miss Louise Swan, who disappeared from her home at No. 11 West 30th street nearly two weeks ago, returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Swan, today. Louise was in excellent health and would probably have remained in Philadelphia had it not been for the excitement the disappearance created and the anxiety she caused her family. No explanation was given the press and to why she remained away from her home.

PURPOSE

Of Steel Trust in Taking Over Tennessee Company Set Forth.

Special to Telegram.

New York, July 28.—That the financing of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Syndicate did not cost as much as a postage stamp was the declaration made today by L. C. Hanna, of Cleveland, Ohio, before the Stanley Steel Trust investigating committee. Mr. Hanna testified that the main purpose of the men who took over the Tennessee company in competition with the steel corporation was to develop the great mineral resources rather than equip the property.

WOULD ABOLISH NATIONAL MONETARY COMMISSION

Special to Telegram.

Washington, July 28.—The Senate today after a prolonged discussion refused to consider the bill introduced by Senator Cummins, of Iowa, to abolish the National Monetary Commission after December 25. On several occasions during the present session Senator Cummins has tried to gain recognition for his bill. It was only today, however, that he succeeded in calling up the measure. He urged that the National Monetary Commission be abolished on account of the fact that they had practically completed their work and that the commission should not be an establishment conducted for the benefit of the "lame ducks" of the House and Senate who failed of election.

ATWOOD TO FLY FROM CHICAGO TO MILWAUKEE.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, July 28.—Harry J. Atwood today closed a contract whereby he will make a flight from Milwaukee to Chicago for $10,000. Washington parties are backing the program. Atwood proposes to make a flight here tomorrow afternoon. On next Saturday he will fly in Baltimore, after which he will leave for Milwaukee.

Complications in the Lorimer Case Arose Yesterday.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, July 28.—The Lorimer case was further complicated today when Alfred McCordic, of Chicago, testified that the very day Cook had his much disputed conversation with Hines, Cook repeated the entire conversation to McCordic, his attorney. The attorney's statement agreed in general to the testimony given by Cook a few days ago. Thomas McGuire, of McGuire and White, detectives, was again before the committee and testified to working on the so-called White confession. Chairman Dillingham read a telegram from former Representative Tawney denying that he had been mixed up in the magazine matter. Keeley testified that George Glaxis said that Tawney knew about it.

CONVICT GUARD SHOT BY ACCIDENTAL DISCHARGE.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, July 28.—Clarence R. Coble, road overseer for Clayton township, had his hands badly injured by the accidental firing of a gun while he was guarding convicts for a guard who had gone away for a few minutes. The gun slipped while he rested it on a wagon and struck the hammer. The thumb and first finger of the right hand were completely shot off.

EXCITED OVER SHOOTING HE LEFT CRUTCHES

Special to Telegram.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 28.—While cleaning a 30 calibre pistol today John Summers accidentally shot 5-year-old Ruth Emswiler in the abdomen. The child will probably die. Summers, who is a cripple and uses crutches, was frightened out of his wits. Forgetting his crutches Summers rushed from the room and ran several miles into the country. Efforts are being made to calm the fellow over the telephone. The childs father was killed several years ago by a cave-in in the Presbyterian church site here.

MEMBERSHIP OF THE GREENSBORO Y. M. C. A.

Directors Decide on Four Classes, Juniors, Intermediates, Seniors and Business Men--Qualifications for Membership--Campaign for Members to be Started Soon.

The directors of the Young Men's Christian Association held a well-attended meeting in the directors' room of the Commercial National Bank last night, and considered a number of matters of interest to the association.

The report of the committee on membership policy was submitted, and adopted. This report provides that the dues of members shall be as follows:

Juniors—From 12 to 15 years of age, inclusive, $5.00 a year.

Intermediates—From 16 to 17 years of age, inclusive, $7.00 a year.

Seniors—All members 18 years of age and over, $10.00 a year.

In addition to the above classes there will be a business men's class, which will have private dressing rooms and lockers, and the charge will be $12.00 a year. This class will be entirely optional, as any man who cares to do so may instead join the Senior class.

Initiation fees will be charged as follows: Business men, $3; Seniors, $2; Intermediates and Juniors, $1. The initiation fee will be charged a member only once no matter how many years he is a member, unless he allows his membership to lapse and rejoins.

It was decided to conduct a membership campaign as soon as the building is ready for occupancy, and during this campaign persons may join without paying any initiation fee.

A provision will be made for boys from 9 to 12 years of age to have classes at the building once or twice a week, but until they are 12 years of age they cannot become members of the association.

All white male persons over 12 years old of good moral character are eligible to membership.

GREENSBORO MAN INVENTS A MOST PRACTICAL MACHINE

W. B. Truitt Secures Patent On Truitt Dividing Engine—Will Doubtless Prove Boon To Boiler Making Industry—Machine May Be Manufactured Here.

The United States patent office in Washington has just granted to W. B. Truitt, of this city, a patent for the Truitt Dividing Engine, a machine invented by Mr. Truitt. The invention is considered by machinists as a valuable one and will no doubt be largely in demand.

The engine or machine is a mechanical spacer to be attached to punches when drilling holes through heavy sheet iron and other iron material. Heretofore the distance between each hole has been measured and of course the distance was not always the same. In shops where boilers are built and rebuilt the device will prove almost indispensable as several hundred holes have to be punched in a single boiler. With the spacer device the work of punching the holes can not only be done with a considerable saving of time, but each hole will be exactly the same distance from the other.

The construction of the device is simple, consisting of two operating parts. One part has a "total space" scale, cooperating with the other part, which bears a "number of parts" scale. To make the machine operate at any given distance the operator simply has to set an index to each of the scales.

Mr. Truitt while assisting in boiler construction saw the advantage such a machine would be to the boiler making business and he at once began work upon the invention. It is quite possible that a factory for the manufacture of the machine will be located in Greensboro as competent machinists are of the opinion that there will be a large demand for Mr. Truitt's invention.

Third Death From Collision.

Special to Telegram.

Albany, N. Y., July 28.—The third death resulting from the collision between the trolley car and a straw ride party last evening occurred today, the victim being Samuel Hoffman, aged 14. Of the sixteen injured, four are in a hospital, two being badly hurt.

VEDRINE SAYS HE COULD DESTROY ALL GERMAN BALLOONS

Special to Telegram.

London, July 28.—Another war cry, resulting from the Moroccan situation, was sounded here today at a luncheon given at the Savoy in honor of Lieut. Conneau, the French officer who won the Daily Mail aviation prize of $50,000, in a speech by Jules Vedrine, who boasted that with his aeroplane he could easily destroy all the army balloons of the German army. With 200 kilograms of dynamite what country could stand against France if 200 aviators were prepared to sacrifice their lives for their country. The aeroplanes of France and England could beat the world, he said.

Woman Charged With Murder.

Special to Telegram.

Springfield, Ill., July 28.—Mrs. Randolph Holmes, a prominent divorcee, is under arrest today, charged with murdering Bud Shehern, a wealthy cattleman.

CROSSED THE OCEAN ONE THOUSAND TIMES.

Special to Telegram.

New York, July 28.—An interesting story of an officer on the ocean liner St. Paul was told today. It is to the effect that when Purser Thomas Kinsey arrives in England he will have completed his thousandth trip across the ocean. This makes a total distance of 3,000,000 miles that Kinsey has traveled since his connection with the steamboat company.

REPUBLICAN PARTY CONFRONTED BY A SERIOUS BREAK

President's Attitude on Wool Revision Bill May Mean Disaster.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, July 28.—That the Republican party is today confronted by the most serious break in its ranks known in the history of the party, not excepting the free silver split of 1890, was frankly admitted by Republicans who called on the President today.

Some regard it as meaning disaster to the party for years to come. It is understood it is the President's purpose to veto any wool bill that is passed, his purpose being based upon the position that the schedule cannot be revised in a few days without scientifically gathered facts to base the revision upon. The President says that the old tariff bill was passed without Congress having in its possession any facts that would enable the members to act intelligently.

It is said that the President will veto any measure looking to the downward revision at this session. His purpose is to have Congress fully acquainted with the facts regarding commercial conditions throughout the country through the report of the tariff board. When the report is received, he believes, Congress will then be able to act intelligently upon the tariff matter, but that without it they will be at sea.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Mr. H. Galt Braxton, business manager of The Telegram, has sold his interest in The Telegram Company to the undersigned and, as announced elsewhere, retires from this business. The publication of this newspaper will be continued by The Telegram Company without any interruption of the course it has pursued since the property was purchased by Mr. Braxton and myself. I have controlled the editorial policy of the paper during our joint ownership of the business, and it will remain unchanged. In addition to the position of editor, I will in the future fill the position of business manager, and will have entire supervision of all the departments of the business. In the conduct of the business of The Telegram there will be only such changes as differences in the ideas and methods of different individuals are likely to bring about.

Having had about twenty years' experience in active newspaper work in practically every department of the business, and much experience in the business management of both daily and weekly newspapers, I am not taking up new work in assuming the business management of The Telegram. This fact I hope to demonstrate satisfactorily to the business men of Greensboro when I have the opportunity to become better acquainted with them as a whole. During the few months I have been a citizen of Greensboro my efforts to improve the editorial department and news service of The Telegram have fully occupied my time and made it necessary to remain in the office. On this account I am practically a stranger to many of the business men of the city, but I assure them that such will not be the case for any length of time in the future, and that I shall take steps at once to form the acquaintance of every business man in the city, to present the merits of this newspaper, to solicit their business, and to aid them in every possible way in planning and placing their advertising.

As stated by Mr. Braxton and myself in the announcement of the purchase of The Telegram, I am in Greensboro mainly because of faith in the future of this city. Greensboro is a delightful residence city and in some respects, from a business standpoint, one of the best cities of its size in the South. There remains, however, much to be accomplished here. Greensboro ought to grow to be the largest city in North Carolina, and will do so if the right course is pursued by its citizens. I admire the progressive spirit displayed by many of Greensboro's citizens and find their achievements in the upbuilding of the city as much a source of pride as they can possibly do. I am here to conduct a newspaper; an unfettered, independent, impartial and clean newspaper, according to newspaper standards which I believe are as high as those of the best and cleanest papers of the country. I am, also, here to stand shoulder to shoulder with the progressive men of the city and to labor with them for whatever will advance the interests of the city and of Guilford county. I am keenly interested in the development of the resources of the great South; and while I remain a citizen of this city, especially interested in the development of Greensboro, Guilford county and North Carolina. It will afford me gratification at all times to be instrumental in any degree in accomplishing anything for the advancement of the moral or material interests of the city and county and State. In these particulars the record of The Telegram stands, and will continue to stand, as the concrete evidence of the truth of these expressions.

In regard to the retirement of Mr. Braxton from this business I have to say that it is regretted. He is a most honorable gentleman and an experienced business man, and I am sorry he finds that the limitations of this business justify his retirement. He has attractive offers to go elsewhere, and I join with the friends he has won during his short residence here in wishing him the greatest possible success wherever he decides to cast his lot.

With Mr. Braxton's retirement there will be no other changes in the personnel of The Telegram's staff. Mr. H. E. Oliver, a most competent man, remains in charge of circulation; and Mr. James N. Benton, who needs no recommendation to the people of Greensboro, will continue to fill the position of city editor.

With the expression of appreciation to the public for the patronage of the past few months, I trust The Telegram may continue to enjoy its most pleasant relations with the people of this city, this and surrounding counties.

J. T. FAIN.

Statement from Mr. Braxton.

Confirming the announcement printed above, I wish to say that I have disposed of all my holdings in The Telegram Company to Mr. J. T. Fain. He will continue to conduct the paper and carry out the principles and plans which we outlined in our first expression to the people of Greensboro.

It is with regret that I give up my connection in Greensboro. My associations on the paper and in the city have been both cordial and pleasant. The size of the field does not warrant the continued efforts of both Mr. Fain and myself. Mr. Fain can, and I believe will, give the people of Greensboro just as good newspaper in the future as we have endeavored to give them in the few months that we have been here.

I wish to take this parting opportunity to express my appreciation to the good citizens of Greensboro for their cordiality extended me and to those who have continued their support to The Telegram under our management. I have made some good friends in Greensboro and it is with regret that I shall have to break these new ties of friendship so soon. My plans for the future are not matured and for the time being, at least, I will continue to make my residence in Greensboro. I shall always be interested in the success of The Telegram and I bespeak continued hearty support and patronage for The Telegram under the sole management of Mr. Fain.

H. GALT BRAXTON.

From the standpoint of water supply, it seems that Greensboro will soon be as dry as Charlotte or Raleigh. From a business standpoint it would be impossible to imagine Greensboro as "dry" as either of the said cities.

Senator Bailey has resigned again—this time from the Senate committee on Privileges and Elections. He resigned because he objected to the Senate's methods of taking testimony in investigations. It is believed Bailey will stay resigned in this case, as it has been two days since his resignation was handed in and it has not been withdrawn.

Now the big newspapers of the country are telling all about how President Taft signed the Reciprocity treaty. They have been telling for weeks about how the Democrats were going to pass the bill for him. The Democrats finished the job in perfect tsyle and the President should put reciprocity into practice by signing a good Democratic tariff revision bill, if Congress passes one up to him.

Greensboro has dropped into the class with Raleigh and Charlotte. A water famine is in sight here, according to a story appearing in The Telegram's news columns this morning. But for the prompt action of Commissioner Foushee some time ago, in stopping the water waste, it is probable that the city would several weeks ago have been up against a dangerous shortage of water.

Thomasville Gets That Depot.

Thomasville's long-promised passenger station is actually begun! This statement we know is almost incredible, but if any doubting Thomas will take the trouble to go over in the neighborhood of the Mock House he can deny the fact no longer. A large tool shed, a pile of sand, a wooden traffic guard, a gaping hole in the ground and half a dozen dusky citizens assiduously enlarging the same—these are proofs that are patent to all, and which must convince the most skeptical. The new depot is to be located about two hundred feet north, or east or whichever direction it happens to be—at any rate, toward High Point—from the old one. This puts one end of it directly in front of the Mock House, and consequently leaves a mere pig-path where Main street ought to be. But never mind; we can stand anything since the house is actually under way. The new station is to be of pressed brick with a tile roof; it is to be one hundred and twenty feet long, will have two large waiting rooms, and a ticket and baggage office each twenty by twenty. It is to be electric lighted, steam heated and will have all modern conveniences including toilet rooms and a ladies' waiting room. In other words it is to be a jim-dandy.

There will be no train shed. The station itself will have a wide shed running all around it, but there will be no long shed such as there is at High Point. That is, there will be none for the present; however, that is a feature that may easily be added when the town is a little larger, and we confidently expect to see a shed running to the Salem street crossing before many years. However, as the plans now stand the new depot will be a credit to the town.—Davidsonian.

Piedmont Baptist Association.

This body, composed of the Baptist churches of Guilford, Rockingham and Randolph counties, with a few others from Alamance and Forsythe, met in annual session with the Baptist church of Asheboro on Tuesday the 25th.

The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. W. F. Staley of Greensboro. He was greeted by a fine congregation and his sermon was a very thoughtful and helpful discourse. On Wednesday morning the body met for business. Rev. F. H. Jones of Reidsville, for many years the moderator of the association, on account of the feeble condition of his health, declined re-election, and Rev. W. F. Staley of Greensboro, was elected to that postion. Rev. W. H. Eller, also of Greensboro, was re-elected clerk of the association.

The Biblical Recorder, the organ of the denomination, was discussed in a luminous way by Rev. A. L. Betts the active and energetic agent for that excellent paper.

E. L. Middleton of Raleigh, spoke to the report on Sunday schools with uncommon vigor. This report is always interesting, and Mr. Middleton reported no little information on this subject.

The report on State missions was read by Rev. John R. Miller, of High Point, and Rev. Livingston Johnson, of Raleigh, presented that subject in a space of singlar force and power. This is one of the subjects of prime importance before every Baptist Association. The Baptist are wide awake on the subject, and the church at Asheboro is itself a striking illustration of the work of the State Mission Board. Without its timely help this church could not have been built. Pledges from the churches followed the discussion of the report, and a large amount was subscribed for the work of State missions during the coming year.

The subject of Temperance was discussed in a very excellent speech by Dr. W. C. Tyree, of High Point. This was followed by a consideration of the report on Home Missions. Among Baptists Home Mission means all the destitute territory embraced within the limits of the Southern Baptist Convention including the island of Cuba and the frontier country of the Southern Pacific slope.

The Baptist Orphanage is the most popular object before the Baptist people of North Carolina. At 8 o'clock p. m. Dr. Archibald Johnson discussed the Orphanage before a crowded house. He was followed by Dr. William Louis Poteat in a speech of tremendous power. Dr. Poteat is one of the finest platform speakers in North Carolina, and he never fails to enlighten and delight his hearers.—Asheboro Courier.

The Cotton Bill a Striking Proof of Democratic Sincerity.

The Cotton bill framed by the Ways and Means Committee and indorsed by the Democratic caucus, provides for a reduction of 43 per cent from the present rates. The average duty imposed by the Payne-Aldrich act is 48.12 per cent; that of the Underwood bill 27.06. Considerable reductions are provided for in the rates on threads and yarns, spool thread, cotton cloth, handkerchiefs, ready-made clothing, collars velvets and plushes, stockings, gloves, ribbons, underwear, table damasks and towels. These are necessities, used in every household, but when the Payne and Aldrich committees took up this schedule for revision, instead of substantially reducing the rates as was hoped for, they actually increased them on a number of articles.

In determining to pass the cotton bill at once, without waiting until the regular session and to pass it as proposed by the Underwood committee, the Democratic members of the House give fresh proof of their sincere determination to revise the tariff in the interest of the consumer. A majority of the Democratic Congressmen are from the South where cotton manufacturing is a leading industry. Not a few come from districts in which the cotton manufacturers are powerful and in which a large proportion of the population depends upon the factories for a livelihood. Despite the protective tariff on their products the Southern cotton mills have made little profits during the past four years, many being operated at an actual loss. They have never received as high protection as the woolen manufacturers or the New England mills which make finer grades of cotton goods.

But the Democrats have gone bravely ahead and prescribe for their own constituents the same medicine they administer to the New Englanders. This is a real sacrifice they are making for principle, and there could hardly be stronger proof of their sincerity. The Democrats, under the leadership of Underwood and Clark, have changed the method of adjusting tariff rates. Under Dingley, Payne and Aldrich each "interest" was given what it demanded, "favors" were dealt out to each section and by "log rolling" enough votes were secured to "put the bill through." Such mazes of trickery as the Dingley and Payne-Aldrich acts, with their unequal and unjust rates, were the results. The Underwood method is simplicity itself, the rates being based on the revenue requirements of the government and justice to all, manufacturer and consumer alike.—Baltimore Sun.

FOR NERVOUS PEOPLE

(By MARGARET E. SANGSTER.)

The relentless pressure of our times and the continual temptation to worry because we cannot keep up the pace has brought about the prevalence of nervous trouble and hysteria to a lamentable extent.

Which of us has not some friend who is broken down through nervous exhaustion Who has not known the day when she had to keep a firm grip on herself lest she should laugh or cry when she did not wish to do either? We are hurried beyond the bounds of wisdom and common sense, and, more or less, we are driven to death.

Hurry lies in wait for us like a wild beast in ambush and pounces upon us before we are dressed in the morning. Worry seizes us by the teeth and shakes us over an abyss into which we are desperately sure we shall plunge.

The result is that hurry and worry rob our manners of repose and our faces of beauty long before we are old. A gifted writer has said that "a woman can spoil a beautiful face by an unlovely expression of the mouth, and she can make a comely one ridiculous by grotesque contortions of which she is unconscious. If you dought this just go out on a crowded thoroughfare in a shopping district with the deliberate purpose to study facial expressions. Almost every other woman you meet will be an object lesson to you what not to do.

It really is of vast importance that you give serious attention to the fact that the mouth is in such intimate sympathy with your every thought and feeling."

"That a very large majority of women are unconscious or heedless of this fact is evidenced every hour in the day; not merely by the fleeting distortions in which they indulge, that are like a passing cloud, but by the positively weird grimaces which are sometimes stamped upon the faces for many minutes, and which reveal, if we follow Lavater's method of studying character by imitating the expression, a curious mixture of wayward, half-formed impulses and indefinite thoughts.

"Not only acts but impulses and feelings which are registered leave their marks; but the exercise of the will, controlling by thought our emotions, can efface the work of the latter. There is an intuitive association between the muscles of expression and the nerve-centers of though and feeling, and it is only by being on our guard that we can control this photograph, as it were, of our most fleeting thoughts. With our utmost care at times it is impossible.

"Whenever the thoughts turn in their habitual direction a stream of nervous fluid is cenveyed to the corresponding muscle of expression, and even when the face is held in unusual control they leave their impression, strengthening and deepening the lines, however imperceptibly at the moment, that grave upon the face its character. Even in dreams every faintest emotion chases its fellow over the countenance of the unconscious sleeper, betraying joy or sorrow."

Men Were Deceivers Ever

(By JOHN WATSON WHYTE.)

Ever since the immortal William Shakespeare wrote the above headline far back in the spacious days of the Great Queen Bess, there has been no alteration in human nature. The husband or sweetheart of today, clad in his derby hat and tweed overcoat, is very much the same gentleman who, in Shakespeare's day, used to ruffle it in murrey and blue.

Certainly, he carries an umbrella instead of a sword, and thereby keeps out of a deal of trouble; but, though times alter, men remain much about the same, and what William Shakespeare wrote about men in the sixteenth century holds good in the twentieth. There is no doubt about it, men are a bad lot, who love and ride away, or as butchers who palm off mutton as prime spring lamb.

The only consolation about the whole business is that, by this time, you are getting pretty well accustomed to our little games, for I have found since my earliest childhood, that the infant, boy or girl, who wants to get the best of woman, must get up very early in the morning.

In fact, the whole game, as played by man and woman, is one of bluff, which starts on the man's side shortly after he is born.

The first thing that man wants in this world is to be made much of and to be petted by woman. This characteristic he doubtless inherits from countless generations of man ancestors. So his first business after his arrival in this world of woes and illusions is to howl for his mother.

His mother, poor guileless lady that she is, promptly responds. She calls her rubber-faced, squalling atom of humanity "Mummy's own little lambkin," dandles him and fondles him, greatly to the disgust of his small elder brother, who has found himself put on the shelf by the unwelcome new arrival.

It does not take the man-infant very long to find out that every time he howls he gains the attention and solicitude of his womenfolks. Therefore, he learns to howl and to put on much frills like a popular tenor, till one fine day he receives his first spanking.

There is no more injured or surprised person in the world than a boy who has learned for the first time that "the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world." A man who has been struck by lightning or who has been unexpectedly kicked by a mule is mildly surprised compared to the baby who has received his first spanking from a loving mother.

Your lady visitors calling in after this event, view his majesty, the baby, lying so good and placid in his cot, sucking his thumb and gazing at the ceiling with wide-open blue eyes. You declare that he is an angel and could devour him with kisses.

Take my word for it, ladies, that baby is no angel. He is just lying there thinking and thinking how he may best get a bit of his own back from his too confiding mother.

The boy grows up from babyhood into short frocks and from short frocks to breeches. All the time he is learning to circumvent the arrangements his womankind are making for his discomfort. He learns to dodge washing, hair brushing and inspection of "corners" as far as these disagreeable functions can be dodged. There is hardly a trick that he is not up to in the way of pretending that he is clean when he is not. He will "lick and promise," and hide away in the kitchen. He will turn up with a clean face hiding hands as black as soot in his pockets.

If he has carried away the seat of his knickerbockers sliding down a board full of nails, he learns to keep the face of innocence turned toward his mother, and so sit on his injured clothing till detection can no longer be avoided. In dodging the smaller domestic duties which are sometimes entrusted to him the boy shows a foresight and instinct which are positively remarkable.

It is wonderful how he learns to disappear into thin air just before he is going to be asked to hold the baby, run an errand or get up a scuttleful of coal.

Any mother of sons will tell you that her 12-year-old son, as solid as a rock and as tough as whipcord when dinner is going to be put on the table, is as evanescent and intangible as a will-o'-the-wisp when the question of wiping dishes arises.

All these little tricks of dodging and deceiving women are eclipsed when the young man, having outgrown his boyhood, falls in love and seeks the sex he was wont to avoid.

It is wonderful to observe the change which comes in at this period. The youth who a few weeks before was dodging shyly from his mother's suggestion that a good dose of mottled soap and round towel would do his appearance no harm, now washes and scrubs till he shines like a new cent.

He plays the "good boy" till butter would not melt in his mouth, though if the young lady concerned does not approve of good boys he will hint at a lurid and terrible past.

He is deceiving all the time, though he does not know it. To gain the good graces of his lady love he will persuade himself that he is ready to do or die.

So he persuades some confiding young woman to place him on a pedestal and to fall down and worship him. Which she does until they are married. Then he promptly falls off his pedestal and is broken into the average matrimonial pulp out of which wise wives model good husbands.

As a rule, when a young man is married his career of deception ends. His slightest move towards telling or acting anything but the truth is immediately met by the wifely challenge: "John, you have been up to something. I can tell it by the look in your eye."

And, ladies, how are you going to dodge that?

Us—Come right in, old man, and see our new baby! There—isn't he great?

He—Oh, yes! Fine! Well, they say homely babies grow up to be handsome that is, you can be thankful—er—well, how much he looks like his mother, I mean!—Toledo Blade.

When a Man's Engaged

By ALVA ARMSTRONG.

Engagements have a trick of throwing many curious and not always entirely attractive sidelights on a man's character.

Of course, it goes without saying that probably all of them are hidden from his ladylove. It is the outside world that suffers and as it is entirely wrong and unjust that it should suffer, some of its wrongs shall be ventilated on this page.

All the world is said to good naturedly love a lover. Women assuredly take a kindly interest in any specimen that comes their way; but, no matter how old or young she may be, every woman deeply resents being treated with less courtesy than she is entitled to simply because the engaged one has eyes and ears for no one save the beloved.

"I'm perfectly devoted to her!" sighed a certain swain. "But you need not trample on all the women's trains to get at her!" was the crushing reply, and the little bit of dialogue is immensely suggestive of some engaged men's little ways.

It goes without saying that no gentleman ever behave s in this fashion, but, alas! in his lovelorn condition many an otherwise agreeable youth often betrays that his gentlmanliness was a very thin veneer.

Naturally, a man desires to serve and shelter the well beloved by every possible means, but the lover one doesn't love would roughly sprinkle another woman with raindrops in his efforts to guard the one girl's hat.

Nor are his manners above reproach in dealing with his fellows. He shows no courtesy to womanhood at large, therefore he regards with dark suspicion any masculine courtesy shown to his sweetheart. Instead of accepting a service, or little attention to the adored one gracefully, his agreeable little habit is to glower, to refrain from thanks when thanks are due, to, in a word, show himself the boor he is.

GIVE AND FORGET

(By CARA REESE.)

Lay your gift on the altar and then keep your hands off.

Turn your back on the offering. Look up to heaven for strength if need be. think of the weather, or the damage the children are doing while you are worshiping or sacrificing, anything so that you do not hanker to have the gift back.

The most beautiful of altar offerings, the most costly of gifts, the most precious in the fragrance of prayer and incense have been damaged, cheapened and more than wasted through a greedy loving and an uneasy desire to look over again, to finger and fondle and admire the gift. Turn your back quickly and forget it. Keep eyes, hands and thoughts on something else.

There have been goodly mothers who have yielded son or daughter to the keeping of someone else, they have trod on air as one that overcometh and maketh great sacrifice. But later they can not keep their hands off, and that is where the trouble lies. Some have yielded up great interests in life as a sacrificial gift, but alas, cannot keep off the hands and the last estate is worse than the first.

It is much the same when favor is shown to others. An otherwise sincere gratitude is frequently turned to hatred because of the later meddling. With your hands in a fidget and your thoughts ever following the offering, there is a cheapening and debasement. Alas, that there should be so many goodly gifts laid on the altar of service and with the purest intentions and yet degraded and become as a stench to the nostrils all because the unwise one failed to keep hands and thoughts off.

There is the helping hand to the distressed, the helping hand to the impoverished, the open door and willing heart. You imagined that you had considered the undertaking well when you advanced toward the altar with your priceless gift of personal denial in behalf of the homeless who must perchance ever sit hereafter by your fireside. You imagined you were equal to the burden and had weighed well the expense and sacrifice. In your zeal and enthusiasm perhaps you cried out "Behold my gift to the cause of humanity."

But you lingered. You admired. You looked at yourself in the glass, as it were, and smiled with an air of superiority. In other words, you played with the offering, you gossiped, you discussed its merits, and soon that which should have been holy and of goodly savor, became a nesting place for hornets and your reward only the stings and stabs of poisonous insetcs.

Lay your gift on the altar, then quickly turn your back and keeps hands off. There is too much giving and remembering, too much showing favor and keeping record, too much sacrifice and sneaking back to steal the gift. Turn your back, hands off!

Do Your Cooking in the Cool

A hot kitchen is little better than a prison in summer. But the range is there, so all the cooking and the washing must be done there, too.

What a relief it would be to move the range where you pleased. You can do this with a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove—cook your dinner out on the porch, if you like. It is the only range that is really portable—that works equally well in any place. There are no connections to be made, as in a gas range; no wiring, as with an electric stove; no sooty flues and ash-filled grates, as with coal or wood.

The long, enameled chimneys carry the heat directly up to saucepans, oven or boiler; you get full value from your fuel, without waste.

WOOL BILL MAY PUT BILL TAFT IN HOLE

It is Likly to Prove His Undoing Either "Comin' or Goin'"—President Has Condemned Payne-Aldrich Schedule as "Indefensible" but Does Not Wish to Approve Tariff Reduction Bill

Special to Telegram.
(By VICTOR ELLIOTT.)

Washington, July 28.—A desperate political game, played for big stakes and involving the careers of three candidates for the Presidential nomination in 1912, is centered in the fight over the bill revising the woolen schedule.

Because of this the wool bill has ceased to be merely a bit of tariff legislation. Members of both houses realize that politics is having as large part in the fight as economics, and that the maneuvcrings are largely for political effect. Three men are vitally concerned and all of them, individually, will benefit or lose because of the wool bill, which may or may not be placed upon the statute books.

These three men are President Taft, Senator Robert La Follette and Speaker Champ Clark.

President Taft himself is on record as saying that the wool schedule in the Payne-Aldrich bill is "indefensible." The President has had several unkind things to say about the existing tariff law, so far as its woolen schedule is concerned, and now that he faces the question of either approving or vetoing an "indefensible" part of that bill his previous utterances confound him at every turn.

At the same time the President has let it be known more recently that he will veto all tariff legislation enacted at the extra session of Congress, because he claims such legislation should await the report of the tariff board.

Mr. Taft, therefore, seems to be between the devil and the deep sea. Whatever his action may be with reference to the bill which Congress in all probability will send to him, the executive will be forced to swallow his own words and to reverse himself.

The Democrats know this and so do the insurgents of the House and Senate, and many of the latter are opposed to Mr. Taft's renomination. Senator La Follette will gain much prestige if he aids in the passage of a bill which revises the woolen schedule, only to have that work undone by the Presidential veto. This prospective act of the President can be made one of the principal arguments of those who are seeking the nomination of Mr. La Follette or some other progressive as the Republican standard bearer.

The President would not only have to explain why he signed the Payne-Aldrich bill containing the "indefensible" woolen schedule, but also why he declined to make amends when given an opportunity to put on the law books a revision of the very schedule which he has openly condemned.

The political effect and the dangers to the Taft campaign are recognized here by all politicians and officials who make it a business to study the influence that such inconsistencies will have upon the public mind.

The House bill, which is the creation of Champ Clark, Oscar Underwood and associates, cuts the tariff rates on raw and manufactured wool more than half. The La Follette substitute leaves the duties a little higher, but even the La Follette bill will mean a substantial reduction of the existing rates.

So it seems that the matter in its final analysis is to be put squarely up to President Taft, and the chief executive will be placed in an embarrassing position whichever way he turns. Mr. Taft is not unaware that the country is demanding a revision of the tariff, and that the Democratic successes at the polls last November were largely the result of dissatisfaction with the Payne-Aldrich law. On the other hand, Mr. Taft comforts himself with the thought that there has been created a tariff board and that no tariff legislation of any kind should be attempted until that board has had an opportunity to make a report on the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad.

The question is, however, whether the country is willing to countenance any further delay in the revamping of the Payne-Aldrich rates. The country, it appears, was in rather an impatient frame of mind last November, and this worries the President and his close political advisors who are trying to bring about his renomination in 1912, and who are trying to defeat the efforts of the insurgents to name a more "progressive" candidate. If the 1912 campaign were not so close at hand the President might veto the House wool bill or the La Follette bill and await one of his own liking, but a veto at this time will leave the tariff question still further up in the air. Business interests will be as discontented and unsettled as ever.

While it is to be assumed that the Democrats and insurgents are sincere in their efforts to revise the tariff, it is plain to see that adverse action on the part of the President will redound to their credit just the same as though their joint measure were to become a law. Both Senator La Follette and Speaker Champ Clark, the latter one of the Democratic candidates for the Presidency, will be in position to show that they did their best and that their efforts were blocked by the President himself. This political aspect has given the consideration of the wool bill a deeper significance than generally attaches to an attempted revision of the tariff. The shadow of the wool bill will hang over both the Democratic and Republican national conventions in 1912, and men may be made and unmade politically by the developments of the next few days in the Senate.

James Whitcomb Riley Starts a Commotion That Has George Ade a Guessing.

James Whitcomb Riley was a guest, a year or two ago, at Hazelden farm, George Ade's big country place in Western Indiana. Ade had instructed all the farmhands before the guest's arrival to see to it that Mr. Riley wanted for nothing while there to make his stay pleasant. But he wasn't prepared for the commotion he saw looking out of his bedroom window the morning after Riley came. The chief thing that attracted his attention was the sight of one of his big motor cars whissing out the driveway and off toward Brook, the nearest village, on high speed.

"Something awful has happened," Ade muttered, "and they're going for a doctor." And he didn't lose any time getting into his clothes.

Out near the barn he found Riley strolling about, taking in the early morning air.

"What's—what's the matter?" inquired Ade, breathlessly.

"What do you mean?" asked Riley.

"Why, that motor car. Aren't they going for a doctor or something?"

"Oh, that," replied Riley. "I've just been wondering myself whatever possessed your chauffeur to take on the way he did. I came up to him a few minutes ago and asked him if he had any chewing tobacco, remarking that I had bought a lot to do me while I was here and then forgot to put it in my grip. Without saying a word he ran away and began to crank up that machine. Can't figure out what his game is."

But the explanation came in a few moments when the chauffeur came chuff chuffing back, still at full speed, with a dollar's worth of chewing tobacco for the poet.

He Recognized Her.

Three o'clock was the very earliest the man could get up to the store, so his wife asked him to meet her then.

"I don't know in what department I shall be at that time," she said, "but just before three I will telephone to the clerk at the information bureau near the main entrance and if you will just step over and ask him he will tell you where I am."

At two minutes past three the man sought information as to the whereabouts of his wife.

"I have a message," said the clerk, "from a woman who said her husband would inquire for her about three o'clock. Maybe it is for you. She said to tell you she had gone to Blank's store over on Sixth avenue to finish her shopping because the clerks in this store are impudent, the place is ill ventilated and she couldn't find anything she wanted here anyhow and never has been able to find anything here and this is positively the last time she will ever try to find anything here. Of course, that might not have been your wife—"

THE RIGHT PLACE

(By CARA REESE.)

The committee will give the right fellow the right place the next time. Experience is a good teacher.

When you are going to have a "mock trial" in the Sunday school and with the best of intentions of teaching a strict moral to the youth there assembled, it were better to make sure before hand that the advocate and star performer for the moral side of the debate is stronger and more convincing than the opponent. The applause is going to the winner, moral or no moral.

As a reputable committee of adjudication you may not bring in a verdict which is not in accordance with facts and testimony and expect to escape lively censure on the part of the audience. You are bound to decision according to "points." Those who have kept tally on these "points" will brook no unfairness. Ah, nonplussed committee of adjudication, your mistake is fundamental. You assigned the right fellow to the wrong place. What are you going to do about it In Sunday school matters attention should be paid to the line-up in debate before the start. Place your winner on the side on which the orthodox impression is to be made.

The mistake is a common one of putting the right fellow in the wrong place. The right fellow is put into the wrong place when he is forced to do his singing behind the curtain, while the inferior vocalist warbles before the footlights. The right fellow is in the wrong place when he plays a professional second fiddle to an amateur performer. The right fellow is in the wrong place when he is a capable underling over whose head the weak and inefficient are jumped. But in each of these instances man makes the place and the right fellow will eventually win right and title in spite of contrary arrangements. There is ever a fair-minded audience keeping tally on "points."

The discredit comes only in such instances where the right fellow in the wrong place leads up logically to a climax at which the audience or public opinion stands against. The right fellow in the wrong place has been known to revolutionize ideas, but not as committee or state might wish. And yet this same right, capable and intelligent power in the right place might have been a great meral force and made a permanent impression along orthodox lines.

Never allow good material to get over into the wrong line-up. You may pound down, sit upon and lock up the right fellow in an effort at elimination from the star role in the cast, but he will still make leading impression. How much wiser to give the right fellow the right place from the start.

Simplifying the Drama.

"No one who has seen a play staged out of doors at night, where the darkness eliminates all need of wing pieces and proscenium, where the characters grow into the sight or melt out of it, can fail to have been impressed by the heightened, almost dreamlike, illusion," writes Walter Prichard Eaton in the American Magazine. "If, now, you hang in front of a suggestively painted back drop—a real picture—some negative draperies on either side, eliminating formal wing pieces and sharp edges; if you light this picture from behind the draperies, so that to the audience they tell rather as folds of shadow, leaving between your actors and the audience a transparent region of darkness, as it were, an intangible glass of illusion, you have achieved an effect of possible beauty and increased suggestiveness by the simplest of means. Certainly, by some such method, the production of Shakespeare could be greatly simplified, many of the scenes now omitted restored to the acting text, the 'waits' cut down, narrative made more coherent and rapid."

Do You Read the WANT ADS?

Have you found out what interesting news is contained in the want page? There is a reason why want ads are interesting to everybody. Supply and demand create a market. The man who has an article which he has no further use for, with the assistance of a little want ad, can find readily the other man who is looking for just that article. On the other hand the man who is looking for some particular article can find the man who has it and who it perhaps has not occurred that he can sell it, thus by means of the want ad purchasers and sellers for small articles get together.

Try a Want Ad in The Telegram, it makes no difference what you want, tell it here.

Report on Cotton Crop in Carolinas.

New York, July 28.—Journal of Commerce says:

North Carolina—On account of insufficient moisture cotton has probably suffered deterioration since last report, when the condition was 87.7. Many sections suffering from drought have received good showers and rapid improvement is looked for owing to a deep root. First planting is generally in fine shape, but the yield from late planted will depend upon the date of killing frosts. The plant is good and strong, well fruited and fields are in an excellent state of cultivation and insects are doing no damage. It is holding its fruit well and a large proportion of correspondents look for the largest crop on record. The season is early and some expect to pick by August 20th, while the general time is from September 1st.

South Carolina—Recent rains in many localities have caused a marked improvement. Plants are generally small but strong, fruiting rapidly, picking to commence about August 25th. In a few sections stands are irregular, early planted having a vigorous growth, while late planted was retarded by drought. Fields generally are clean and but few insects reported. Many farmers report the best prospects in years, and lacking unfavorable conditions from now on, a bumper crop is expected.

COTTON LETTER TO J. E. LATHAM.

New Orleans, July 28.—There were many sensational rumors afloat this morning but their effect was counteracted by cables from Liverpool saying that leading London and Paris bankers regard the situation as clearing and favorable to a peaceful solution. While English consols were ⅛ lower, French rentes were five points higher than yesterday. Liverpool showed the full decline due and weakened steadily to the close. Spots 12 lower; sales 6,000 bales. The following cable is significant in as much as it mentions the absence of real buying power as the principal feature: "Think market overdone even though still maintain general bearish view of new crop, main feature utter absence of real buying power." It must be that spinners' views are much lower, otherwise such a decline as we have had would not have met with such astonishing indifference every where.

The weather map shows fair in the eastern half of the belt, generally cloudy in the western half, no rain of consequence over night. Indications are for generally unsettled weather over Sunday.

The market advanced a little after the opening, but absence of a sustained advance allowed bearish feeling to assert itself in another attack on the market which broke December to 10.97.

INSTITUTE AT THE BATTLE GROUND FRIDAY

Another will be Held at Jamestown Today ---Much Interest Taken.

Yesterday at the Battle Ground was held the first of a series of Farmers' Institutes, the attendance being most gratifying to those who have charge of the party. A special train carried the institute workers to the place, which scores of buggies and wagons brought farmers from that section of the county, each vehicle being supplied with "something good to eat."

The interest being taken in these institutes this year is much greater than it has been heretofore. The fact that such a good corn crop is reported in this section, the exceptionally dry weather being taken into consideration, is no doubt due in a large measure to the educational work of the department of agriculture in giving free instruction on preparation of the soil so that crops are not affected so badly by dry weather.

Today a similar institute will be held at Jamestown for the benefit of the farmers living in that section of the county. On next Friday the final institute of the series will be held at Pleasant Garden.

Bar Meeting.

Richmond, Va., July 28.—Consternation reigned in rich society today when it was announced by attorneys for the prosecution and defense in the Beattie case that Beulah Binford, the other woman, would be made to tell of her relations with several prominent young men here.

Detectives have discovered that on the night of the murder of Mrs. Beattie a young married man, socially prominent, was out motoring with the Binford girl.

Paris, July 28.—Official announcement was made today that the cabinet had decided to reorganize the entire army. This action is regarded as significant in view of the Morooccan situation.

Miss Emilie Grigsby, Beautiful New York Girl, Arouses England

MISS EMILIE GRIGSBY, a beautiful American girl who came into prominence after the death of Charles T. Yerkes a few years ago when it became known that the street railway magnate had given her real estate, stocks and bonds aggregating $4,000,000, has recently caused a tremendous social sensation in England. While she was a resident of New York she tried to enter "society," and for a time she was received by people of prominence. But the stories that were told about her became so well known that she was dropped by her fashionable friends, and in spite of her beauty, charm of manner and her wealth she made little progress with New York's smart set. Some time after Yerkes' death she went to England, and for a time she was much more successful over there. She met members of the nobility and was even said to be on terms of intimacy with members of the royal family. Indeed, she attended the coronation of King George and Queen Mary in Westminster abbey, a ceremony which was witnessed by few Americans and to which money and influence could not gain tickets of admission. New York papers printed the story together with the facts concerning the young woman's American career, and a sensation was caused in England. Efforts were made to learn by what mysterious means Miss Grigsby, absolutely without sponsors or credentials, had achieved her purpose, but so far the efforts have not been successful.

Forms of Oath.

A Chinaman has been thus sworn in: On entering the box the witness immediately knelt down, and a china saucer having been placed in his hand he broke it. The officer of the court through an interpreter then addressed him thus: "You shall tell the truth and the whole truth, and if you do not tell the truth your soul will be cracked like the saucer." A Mohammedan witness first placed his right hand on the Koran, put the other hand to his forehead and brought the top of his forehead down to the book and touched it with his head. He then looked for some time upon it, and being asked what effect that ceremony was to produce answered that he was bound by it to speak the truth. The deposition of a Gentoo has been received who touched with his hand the foot of a Brahmin. Buddhists have been sworn by "the three holy existences—Buddha, Dhamma and Pro Sangha—and the devotees of the 22 firmaments," and a Parsee on the Zend Avesta, or by binding a "holy cord" round his body.—Law Times.

Expert Testimony.

There was not much to be gained from the witness in the box, who seemed to have a wonderful faculty for holding his tongue, but the lawyer tried once more.

"You say your boat picked up the accused at nine o'clock 'or thereabouts,'" he said. "It has been stated that he jumped overboard nearly an hour before that time. Tell me, Captain Sampson, how he appeared to you when you picked him up. If you had been required to give an opinion of him then, what would you have said?"

"Well, I'll tell ye honest," said the captain, when he had disposed of a portentious yawn. "I sh'd 've said he was one o' the wettest men, if not the wettest man, that ever I see!"

Strength.

Visitor—I wonder where that horrid odor comes from. It can't be the stockyards, because the wind isn't blowing from that direction.

Native—That wouldn't make any difference, mister; when that smell starts on its travels there's no wind that can stop it.

"See here! This is the third time you've been late."

"Yes, sir. Er—er—don't you think it would help some if you opened the office about an hour later each morning?"—Browning's Magazine.

Lake Michigan's season for being crossed in love is wide open.

Miss Gannon Dies In Alabama.

Miss Margaret Gannon, who, for several sessions, was the music instructor in the Greensboro public schools and is well remembered and loved in this city, died Thursday at the home of her brother, John Gannon, in Montgomery, Ala., where for some time she has made her home. An operation was performed upon her that caused blood poison, resulting in her death. The body was carried to Trinity, Randolph county, and interred there yesterday in the family burying plot.

Pamunkey Indians Have Appendicitis.

Special to Telegram.

Richmond, Va., July 28.—R. A. Bradley, son of the chief of the Pamunkey Indians, is in a Richmond hospital, after an operation for appendicitis. This is the second case known to have developed in this tribe.

"A man should follow a determined course regardless of criticism," said the resolute idealist.

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne; "but so many of you are that way only when you waltz."—Washington Star.

RAILROAD MEN HELD MEETING HERE FRIDAY

E. C. Duncan Secures Option on Charter of Raleigh, Charlotte and Southern.

Yesterday in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce was held a session of the incorporators of the Raleigh, Charlotte and Southern Railway, the meeting being held in Greensboro on account of the fact that this city was the most convenient point for a majority of the incorporators. The object of the meeting was to appoint a committee with power to attend to the matters of financing the road. After some discussion the committee was empowered to give E. Carl Duncan an option on the charter, he having stated that he could secure the support of men amply able to back the undertaking in a successful manner.

The proposed road will extend from Raleigh to Charlotte, via Asheboro, Pittsboro and Albemarle, with branch termini in Durham and Greensboro, if those towns so desire. The proposed road would traverse a section not yet opened up and would no doubt be made a paying proposition. The incorporators will get behind the movement at once and hope to soon have the work of construction begun. Mr. Duncan, who secured an option on the charter, stated that it would be easy to get matters in shape so the construction could be pushed rapidly to completion.

Among those here for the meeting were W. L. Mann, L. A. Moody, S. H. Hearne and R. L. Smith, of Albemarle; B. Noal, Henry Noal, H. A. London and F. C. Williams, of Pittsboro; C. C. Crawford, D. B. McCrary, J. R. Ross, of Asheboro.

Do You Feel This Way?

Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? Has ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your lazy liver to work. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a lingering cough, bronchitis, or bleeding at the lungs, it will bring about a cure in 98 per cent. of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice.

Don't be wheedled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicines, recommended to be "just as good." Dr. Pierce's medicines are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. # GETTING BEST IN LIFE

BROTHER DICKEY DELIVERS A SERMON ON SUBJECT.

Passes Some Remarks on Business Man's Account of What He Saw on Trip Through the East.

"I ain't seen you for de longes'," said Brother Dickey, to his friend, the business man, just returned from a trip east. "Whar an' whar hes you been, an' what hes you been a doin' of? Tell me dat now?"

"I'm just in from New York, and Boston and Washington," was the reply. "I've been taking in the country, generally."

"You must 'a' seen a lot," said Brother Dickey.

"Yes; had a fine time of it. Met wide-awake people. They're a hustling crowd, old man; they know how to get the best out of life."

"You reckon dey's a-gittin' it?"

"Seems so. Why, some of 'em own half a dozen automobiles—new one for every day in the week! And they're riding over the earth in airships, whenever they feel like it. I stayed in a hotel 40 stories high. And talk about money, I saw 50 carloads of it—gold, silver and greenbacks—in the treasury vaults at Washington; then I spent a day with congress—the fellows who think they're running the country, you know. Shook hands with our Georgia representative. Fine lot o' boys in congress, Brother Dickey!"

"Well," said Brother Dickey, "is dat all?"

"That's about all I thought you'd care to know."

"I mean," said the old man, "is dat all you got outen it—all you fetched away wid you? Kaze, ef it is, I wants ter tell you dat yo' trip didn't set de river on fire! Is yo' got time ter lissen ter a few remarks what come into my min' whilst you wuz a-gwine on?

"Ez ter de folks with de baif a dozen ortermobiles, I makes no doubt dat dey is speedin' so fas' dey'll go clean pas' de heavenly station, an' never rickernize de hills o' Zion 'tall. Ez ter de high buildin's, dey can't go higher'n God; an' ez fer de flyin' a'rships, no man kin fly so high but God kin t'row him down. You say, dey got it all, but it ain't no good ter have all now, an' bimeby have nothin'! An', comin' ter dem fifty cyarloads o' money what you seen in Washington, tell me, what good it's doin' dar—fer people wid empty pockets ter look at an' go 'way sorrowful? It's des rustin' fer de want o' use. Ole Laz'rus is cryin' at de rich men's gate up dar same ez he done in de fur country yonder, an' what dey calls dem 'treasury watchdogs' is barkin' at him.

"An' talkin' 'bout congress, memme it's dar fer good, an' mebbe it ain't. Ef some er de folks in it talks lak' dey did 'fo' dey got in, ten minutes dar would be too long fer me!

"I ain't a-faultin' nobody," the old man explained. "I'm des passin' my opinions on what you been a'tellin' me. De man high up on de trapeze in de circus looks mighty good ter de crowd, an 'pears ter be gittin' de bes' outen life, but he's mighty glad ter come down w'en his turn is done, an' lay low fer res'.

"De life-circus is soon over, de lights out, an' de tent took away, an' what do it matter den ef you had a front seat, or had ter stan' up fur back?

"Dey ain't but one way ter git de bes' what life is got in it, an' ef you don't find an' foller dat way it's 'good-bye, honey, an' don't tell he folks you seen me!'"—Atlanta Constitution.

What Father Took.

He came down the garden path, a sad, sorrowful figure. She watched him with anxious eyes.

"How did father take it?" she asked.

"He took it—well," replied the young man.

"Oh, I'm so glad, George!" she cried, pressing her hands together.

"Are you?" replied George, flopping forlornly by her side. "Well, I can't say that I am, dear. At first your father wouldn't listen to me."

"Why didn't you tell him that you had $2,500 in the bank, as I told you to?" she exclaimed.

"I did, after all else had failed," answered George depectedly.

"And what did he do then?"

"Do!" echoed the young man, passing his hand wearily through his hair. "He borrowed it!"

A Romance, Almost.

He took the proffered gloveless hand in his, while high above them blew soft breezes, which, descending, fanned the stifling air that sought to stew them as they stood there face to face. Her brows were raised. What joy to be so near this queen of smiling grace, to hold her hand so tenderly!

The fingers rested, slim and white, for one brief moment on his palm. And yet his face showed no delight, his massive chest betrayed no qualm.

As the electric fans above dispersed the heated air and flies, he said, without a sign of love:

"Six and a half, ma'am, is your size."

Airy Persiflage.

"I hope the king and queen will never have the experience in traveling which they will have in the coronation procession."

"What was that?"

"Don't they have their trains held up?"

Mrs. L. F. Tisinger Dead.

Mrs. L. F. Tisinger, remembered in this city as Miss Mattie McCullen, died Thursday night at her home in Eufaula, Ala. The sad news that sends a pang to the hearts of the many friends of the young woman here was received yesterday morning in a telegram to the sister of the deceased, Miss Marie McCullen. Mrs. Tisinger was 27 years of age and is survived by her husband of three years, Dr. L. F. Tisinger, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan McCullen, of this city, who were at the bedside when the end came, two sisters, Miss Marie and little Margaret, and a brother, Bryan, Jr.

Miss McCullen before her marriage in this city was one of Greensboro's most popular and attractive young ladies and her death is deeply regretted by many true friends. The end was particularly said in that though it was known that Mrs. Tisinger was critically ill, the report was circulated here that the patient was beyond danger and recovering satisfactorily. A sudden relapse came Thursday and death followed quickly. The body was prepared for burial and accompanied by the husband and parents, will pass through the city today enroute to Richmond where the burial will be held. The three children of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan McCullen will join the funeral party today at noon and attend the services and interment.

A Library Rule.

Following is an extract from the rules of the Greensboro Public Library:

The annual inventory of books shall be taken during the first two week days of August, and all books must be returned to the Library on or before July 31st, otherwise each delinquent shall incur a fine of fifty cents. Library hours June, July and August, 10 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Father of C. O. Burton Dead.

C. O. Burton, of Pomona, left the city Thursday night for Richmond Hill, N. Y., after receiving a telegram stating that his father, Major W. S. Burton, had died at that place during the day. The funeral services and burial were held yesterday afternoon.

Major Burton was a veteran of the Civil War, having served for four years as Major of the Fourth Michigan Cavalry. He was a highly respected citizen in his native section and was known to many local people as for two years he resided at the home of his son. The deceased was 78 years of age at the time of his death and is survived by his wife and one son.

Little Son of Dr. J. W. Taylor Dead.

Robert, aged five years, the small son of Dr. and Mrs. John W. Taylor, died yesterday morning at 9 o'clock at the home of the parents, 508 Morehead avenue. The body was prepared for burial and carried to Ayden, in Pitt county, yesterday afternoon for interment today.

Friend—I suppose it was hard to lose your daughter?

Father—Well, it did seem as if it would be at one time, but she landed this fellow just as we were beginning to give up hope.—Christian Intelligence.

Women With Small Feet

Can buy oxfords and shoes at just about half price at this store. We are overstocked with small sizes, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3 and 3 1-2, and want to clear them out. Ask to see the small sizes advertised in The Telegram. You can sure get a bargain if you have a small foot. For large women we also have a lot of size 8 and 9 oxfords to close out very low.

We want to remind you that we carry the largest and best stock of mattings, art squares and rugs in the city. As we handle these goods in connection with our large dry goods and shoe business with very little additional expense, we are in position to quote very low prices on mattings and carpets.

We are selling all our childrens and boys' slippers at reduced prices. It will pay you to see these if there are any little folks in the family.

We want a good, bright, reliable boy about 18 years old to help in the store and learn to sell goods. Steady employment for the right sort of boy.

GRAND CHANCELLOR M'LEAN HONORED BY LOCAL PYTHIANS

Reception in His Honor Last Night Largely Attended—Several Enthusiastic Addresses—Mr. McLean Presented With Gold Watch Fob by Greensboro Lodge, No. 80.

Greensboro Lodge, No. 80, Proximity Lodge, No. 158, Guilford Lodge, No. 69, and White Oak Lodge, No. 187, Knights of Pythias, held a reception to members of the four lodges last night in Castle Hall of Greensboro Lodge, No. 80, in honor of C. C. McLean, Grand Chancellor of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina. A number of addresses were made by representative Pythians and so great interest was manifested in the compliment to the exalted member that standing room only could be obtained after the speeches had been commenced.

Judge R. C. Strudwick as master of ceremonies, presided over the meeting which was convened at 8:30 oclock. Mayor Thomas J. Murphy was the first speaker with the address, "Our Grand Chancellor." As in the case of all the talks the speaker was allowed five minutes for his topic, and Mr. Murphy's speech was devoted to an affectionate tribute to Mr. McLean of the pride in and love and friendship for their Grand Chancellor. "Pythianism" by David Stern followed the speaker dwelling upon the principles of the order.

J. J. Phoenix, representative of the Proximity Lodge, then addressed the fraternity brothers concerning the subject "Our Orphanage." He said that the spirit of fraternalism was a shining blessing in the too evident commercialism of the day. That spirit benefits the widow, the orphan, in fact every man, woman, and child who is brought into touch with it. Various orphanages have been established in the state by lodges and churches and only recently did the Pythians awaken and establish a home for their homeless children. The orphanage at Clayton, though yet young, thanks to the labors largely of Grand Chancellor McLean, is thriving well and supporting 12 children. Lodge No. 80, stated Mr. Phoenix, has fitted up the best room in the building.

"The Social Side of Pythianism" was dealt upon by G. Sam Bradshaw. The speaker declared that, as evidenced by such gatherings as that of the evening was demonstrated the importance of social events. He stated that any lodge, whatever the name, where the social side was cultivated and emphasized, was invariably a live and progressive institution.

"Our Duty to Our Grand Chancellor" was explained by McBride Holt, of Graham. The Pythians, especially of the local lodges as they were now the centers of inspiration, should rally to the aid of Mr. McLean in developing the social side, for it can not be done by one man. The Grand Chancellor was a commander who was leading an army of 10,000 men in this state on a brotherly mission of love to make this a brighter and a better place in which to live.

Rev. S. E. Richardson, representative of the White Oak Lodge, explained "My Experience with Pythianism." His talk was replete with merry anecdotes and flashing humor, which kept his audience in a constant laugh. He too explained the beauty of the fraternal spirit existing among the Knights.

G. H. Royster told of the work of "The Insurance Department." He quoted statistics that about $93,000,000 had been distributed by the order of the Supreme Lodge for the benefit of members.

W. F. Roberson, of Wilmington, Past Grand Chancellor, then made an excellent speech of presentation, paying a deserved tribute to Mr. McLean as he handed to him a handsome solid gold Pythian watch charm, the gift of Lodge No. 80. Mr. McLean responded to the enthusiastic calls for an address and acknowledged the present, touching heartily upon the benefits of the fraternal spirit of the organization. Representative of the Supreme Lodge, J. L. Scott, of Graham, also addressed the audience shortly.

During the intermissions music was rendered by Hood's orchestra. Refreshments were served in the social hour after the speeches. Delicious punch was served to all, and cream, cakes, and mints, attractively made in the red, yellow, and blue colors, emblematic of the Pythian organization, with which also the hall was decorated, were distributed freely.

HIS TROUBLE NOT OF HEART

Real Facts In Regard To F. R. Huffman's Illness. Relief Obtained By Curing His Stomach Ailments.

Waynesville, N. C.—Mr. F. R. Huffman, of this city, says: "I suffered dreadfully with what I thought was heart trouble, and tried various medicines in vain.

After other remedies had failed, Thedford's Black-Draught restored me to health. I would not feel safe without Black-Draught in the house. I consider it worth its weight in gold.

It cured my indigestion, and by this means I was restored to health. I can not express my gratitude for its benefits."

Good health depends on the condition of your digestion. Poor digestion and good health do not go together.

Thedford's Black-Draught will thoroughly cleanse and set in order your digestive system.

It has done this for others, during the past 70 years, and is today the most popular vegetable liver remedy on the market. Try it.

Insist on Thedford's. Price 25c.

PICKS DETROIT AND NEW YORK NATIONALS FOR WINNERS

New York Sport Writer Believes These Teams Will be Contestants for Baseball World's Championship Honors—Some Baseball Gossip From Metropolis.

Special to Telegram.

(By MANHATTAN.)

New York, July 28.—On form if I had to pick the clubs which will contend for the world championship this fall I should pick Detroit and the New York Nationals. With the race as close as it is in both leagues it is of course impossible to foretell the winners, but with an even break in luck the New Yorkers and Michiganders look to be right now as the best of the lot.

McGraw has got as good a pitching staff as there is in the country today. His men are not sluggers as a whole, but they are what is better, run getters. He has whipped his team into as pretty a baseball machine as one would wish to see and they look as though they could stand the tremendous strain of the phenomenal race in the national league at least as well as any of the other contenders.

And it is nerve that will win that National League pennant, cold unadulterated nerve.

It would not surprise me if some of the five teams bunched for the lead would blow up at any time under the strain, but I do not believe it will be New York.

The Tigers' bats and base running ought to win for them. In Cobb, Cranford and Delehanty, Jennings has the greatest trio of batsmen who have played together since the celebrated Big Four of a generation ago.

After all its runs that win games and there is no surer way of getting runs than a trio of slick artists who can consistently bat above .340.

There are not many men better qualified to talk baseball than Johnny Ward, in his day the premier short stop of the country. In an interview the other day Ward declared his belief that the pitchers of today are no better than those of his day. John Clarkson, Nichols of Boston, Tim Keefe, Big Jim McCormick, Jouett Meekin and Amos Russie, who both twirled for the Giants when they won the world's championship back in 1894, were as marvelous pitchers as ever lived, says Ward.

And he has his reason. He says:

"The pitchers in baseball today have several advantages over the men who twirled in the old days. When fouls didn't count at all it was tough on the pitchers, because the batsman could stand and pound away until the man in the box became exhausted. But today with the first two fouls counting as strikes, it's the batsman who gets the rough end of it.

"I remember many occasions when the man at bat had fouled five or six times—in the old days—and I've seen tired pitchers grit their teeth and keep on putting 'em over. Today when a batter has two strikes marked up against him on fouls, he becomes over anxious to connect with the ball in order to keep from being struck out. There's nothing in the world a ball player dislikes as much as to be put out without having a chance to swing on the ball, and the pitcher takes advantage of the fact by putting the ball either round the player's neck or just outside the corner of the plate.

"Another advantage the pitchers now have is being mounted up in the air on a mound. They throw from an elevation and the ball shoots downward as it approaches the batter."

Ward says Buck Ewing, the famous old catcher, was the first man to use a big catcher's glove, way back in 1883. Before that time catchers wore small gloves and the fielders none at all.

"There's two things I'm going to say before you go," remarked Ward. "First, it is very noticeable to me when I see a game in which either John McGraw's or Hughey Jenning's team is engaged that both these managers are trying to teach these youngsters some of the tricks they learned years ago. McGraw and Jennings are masters of the game. The other thing is this: Mike Kelly was the greatest ball player who ever engaged in the profession, and Buck Ewing was the greatest catcher I have ever seen."

---

Fred Clarke has been a major league manager for fourteen years and has developed some of the greatest stars that the game has ever known.

He has won four pennants and one world's championship.

Starting out as a groceryman's delivery boy, he has amassed a fortune and a world-wide reputation.. He owns a big ranch in Kansas and says when his baseball days are over he will go there to spend the rest of his life.

During his entire career on the diamond Clarke has been one of the leading hitters of the game and he has an average of over .300 for fifteen years.

In 1897 he was second in the National League to Willie Keeler, with an average of .406.

A baseball Pullman attached to a fast train is considered "good luck." Major League teams travel several thousands of miles every season, and though the risk is great there is seldom a fatal accident. Players have had miraculous escapes from death in wrecks. The St. Louis Cardinals had the proverbial luck when they escaped injury in the wreck at Bridgeport the other day. They occupied the two rear sleepers which were derailed, but which were the only two coaches that did not plunge to the street below.

According to newspaper correspondents with the St. Louis team it was "baseball luck" that saved the Cardinals from injury or death. Their two Pullmans were in the middle of the train leaving Philadelphia, but after the train was ferried around Manhattan Island, the baseball cars were attached to the rear of the regular sleepers. That saved the players from a fall to the street, which probably would have killed some of them and would surely have seriously injured some. Such a catastrophe would have abruptly terminated the great race being made by the Cardinals this season.

A St. Louis team was in the only other big baseball wreck that has occurred in the last ten years. The Browns and the Cleveland team were traveling on a special train one night in 1903 when they were wrecked at a little town in Ohio.

Fifteen or twenty years ago the Chicago National League team was wrecked one night, and Jimmy Ryan was thrown out of an upper berth, landing on top of a freight car on an adjoining track. The sleeper was "sideswiped" by the freight train, and when part of the side and the roof was torn off Ryan went with it. He was badly shaken up and did not return to the game for weeks.

The dean of them all as far as the umpires are concerned, has called his last ball and strike in the American League. Jack Sheridan, who has been making decisions for over twenty years, has decided to quit the game to be a funeral director in California. Sheridan has quit twice before, but he states that this one goes.

Sheridan once said that when a ball player heard the crack of the bat out in the lots when he had told his owner that he was through with baseball, he would come back. "When I heard the mob shouting, 'You're blind!' and 'Kill the umpire!' it made me feel as though I would like to be on the diamond again."

It was not long ago that Sheridan's eyesight was so bad that he had to get out of the game. He was made chief of umpires by Ban Johnson, his great friend. Sheridan's eyes got better and he went at his old work again.

Baseball players who have known Sheridan for twenty years or more, say that he was one of the best arbitrators in the business.

The Finding of the Book of the Law. 2 Chron. xxxiv:14-33.

Golden Text—Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee. Ps. cxix:11.

(1.) Verses 14-17—What book was it they found; what did it consist of, and who was its author?

(2.) What were they doing when they found this book of Moses?

(3.) What are we generally doing when we find our richest treasures of spiritual knowledge?

(4.) How could so important a book have been lost, or mislaid?

(5.) Was this probably the only copy of the book in existence?

(6.) Verses 18-19—What effect did the reading of this book of the law have upon the king?

(7.) What part of the book would be likely to produce such grief on the part of the king? (See Deut. xxviii et seq.)

(8.) What part of this book of the law which pertains to morals, is considered operative and binding to-day?

(9.) You will observe that there are many death penalties for breaches of the moral law. Why have these been abolished by Christian people?

(10.) Did Jesus abolish any of the laws of Moses and if so which? (See Matt. v:38-44, et seq.)

(11.) Why are some laws just and equal under certain circumstances while cruel and unjust under others?

(12.) What has been the effect of reading the Bible upon national and individual character?

(13.) Verses 20-21—If these people did not have the book of the law how did they know their duty, or how to worship?

(14.) Why was it necessary for the king to inquire further of the Lord when he now had the "law" in his hands?

(15.) If more light were needed why could not the king or Hilkiah, the priest, inquire of God direct?

(16.) How did the saints of God, who lived before Moses, find out the mind of God?

(17.) Why are the penalties of moral law as unyielding and certain as are the penalties of physical law?

(18.) Verses 22-25—Why is it that there are and always have been those who are sensitive to the voice of God, when the masses of even spiritual people are dull and unconscious of it?

(19.) What is the reason for believing that all Christian people may cultivate the inward ear to discern the voice of God?

(20.) How many women of the Bible are there which excelled in spiritual power and influence?

(21.) When were these punishments inflicted upon Judah? (See 2 Chron. xxxvi:17-20.)

(22.) Verses 26-28—When a man repents of his sin does God always forgive him, and remit the penalty, or are there exceptions?

(23.) Verses 29-33—The entire nation seems to have repented at this time; did that keep them from being destroyed, and would it have prevented the final overthrow of the nation if they had not backslidden again?

(24.) This incident shows how much influence one man has who is thoroughly aroused. What practical lesson may we learn from it? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Escaped With His Life.

"Twenty-one years ago I faced an awful death," writes H. B. Martin, Port Harrelson, S. C. "Doctors said I had consumption and the dreadful cough I had looked like it, sure enough. I tried everything I could hear of, for my cough, and was under the treatment of the best doctor in Georgetown, S. C., for a year, but could get no relief. A friend advised me to try Dr. King's New Discovery. I did so, and was completely cured. I feel that I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure." Its positively guaranteed for coughs, colds, and all bronchial affections. 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free at Fariss Klutz Drug Co.

Honest Medicines Versus Fakes.

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to Prepared Medicines, does not refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley's Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medicinal qualities are recognized by the medical profession itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains today its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. Howard Gardner.

SPARTANS KNOCKED WALTERS FROM BOX

Won From Greensboro by Easy Score of Nine To Four.

Spartanburg, S. C., July 28.—The locals played a good game today both at the bat and in the field and won from the Patriots 9 to 4. The Spartans batted hard and knocked Walters out of the box at the end of the second. Third Baseman Doak took his place and was but little more effective. All four of the visitors' errors were made in the seventh inning. A home run, a triple and three singles gave the locals three in the first two passes and a single gave another in the second before Walters retired.

WINSTON FOUR; CHARLOTTE ONE

Winston-Salem, July 28.—In a game bounding with sensational plays the Twins took the second of the series from Charlotte by the score of 4 to 1. Bauswine and Boyle were both in fair form, and each allowed nine hits. The game was decided, however, by the times when the Twins got theirs. In the first inning the locals bunched a couple of singles and a double for two runs. Thereafter although the Hornets threatened at several times the game was clearly the property of the Twins.

In the field Agnew and Clancy again featured. Stewart saved a run by the prettiest running catch seen here this season. Spencer made a beautiful catch, and Schumaker got a couple of put-outs on foul flies that were great. Garman's work at first was fast and brilliant, while McMillan made an exceptional pretty throw from center that nipped off a runner at the plate. Clancy featured the hitting with a couple of singles and a double out of four times up.

| Score by innings: | R. | H. | E. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Charlotte | 000 000 010 | 1 | 9 | 3 |
| Winston | 201 010 00x | 4 | 9 | 1 |

Batteries: Bauswine and Ryan; Boyle and Dailey.

ANDERSON EIGHT; GREENVILLE THREE

Anderson, S. C., July 28.—By heavy hitting and good base-running Anderson took the second game of the series from Greenville 8 to 3. Ridgeway opened for the visitors but was wild and walked two in the first inning, gave a hit and allowed two stolen bases. Cashion relieved Ridgeway in the fourth and was quite effective but Trammel was the master of the situation and kept his hits well scattered. The fielding of both teams was good and two double plays are credited to each side.

| Score: | R. | H. | E. |

| Greenville | 002 000 001 | 3 | 10 | 2 |

ENGLAND'S FLEET MAKES READY TO SAIL FOR MOROCCO

Special to Telegram.

London, July 28.—Following Premier Asquith's statement in the House of Commons on the English attitude regarding the Franco-Moroccan discussion a night of activity in the navy, such as has not been seen for years, prevailed. The first division of the home fleet, which contains some of the biggest and best ships of the navy, reported today to be ready to sail on a moment's notice. The Moroccan situation developed into an acute stage today upon receipt of advises of activities of the English and French in preparing for war. The conservative element in the two countries has prevailed over the liberals and reactionaries and it is believed that the difficulties between France, Germany and England will be amicable adjusted.

DIAMOND DUST

All signs fail in dry weather.

Had no idea we would be this far behind Winston again.

Yesterday seems to have been a day of slugging around the circuit.

Seven out of the last eight games is doing mighty well, so we won't complain.

While we have been winning seven out of eight games, Winston has lost five in that number.

There's no telling how many games the Twins would have lost if Coffin hadn't come back.

That fan food that Coffin dishes out to the tribe of Clancy seems to have a mighty exhilirating effect for a dry state.

The Chronicle says that Lave Cross' team follows the water supply in receding. Hope that Greensboro's probable famine will not have that effect on Doyle's men.

Laval always could get the best of our team, yet with those four runs the game should have come our way yesterday. We must certainly take two out of three in the series.

Since Bauswine and Sheesley have had their days we can't hold out much promise of Charlotte's getting a game. Guess Stewart and Hankie will do the twirling today.

Reuben Eldridge (Mr. Jesse Eldridge, if he wins) will do the slab work for the Patriots this afternoon, and we feel confident in saying that we will take another rise in the percentage column.

Miller, the clever dope slinger of the Observer is taking a rest, in an endeavor to ascertain if such conduct on his part will have any effect on "the insects." Since Cross' men work by contraries this may have the desired effect.

Clancy's continues to make shifts in his line-up, and no doubt he is figuring at this minute on another pitcher. Maybe that bonus seems a little bigger and nearer than it did yesterday. Clancy has a number of tricks, but umpires and other teams are learing the weaknesses of his tactics.

Togo refuses to say whether his visit has any political motives.

ROCKINGHAM ASSESSMENTS ARE GIVING TROUBLE.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, July 28.—The kinks in the tax assessments for Rockingham county had further airing before the corporation commission yesterday in a conference in which State Senator A. D. Ivie, Tax Assessor J. V. Price and Chairman of the County Commissioners Montgomery, of Rockingham county participated. Rockingham is the county from which there came the question of whether or not the assessors must assess cotton goods on hand and in the hands of agents, the commission holding that they must not that the commission will figure these assets less solvent credits in capital stock assessments.

GREENSBORO ON VERGE OF A WATER FAMINE

up Reedy Fork to a point where yesterday morning a dam had been constructed across Reedy Fork and the entire stream turned into Horsepen creek. The entire stream was cared for by a ditch two feet wide and a foot and a half deep. In fact the stream was not as large as Horsepen, by at least one third. An investigation showed that the output of the two streams would have to be increased by one third to keep the two pumps in operation.

The two pumps have a daily capacity of about 5,000,000 gallons of water. At present only about 2,500,000 gallons are being pumped each day. As long as this supply holds out there is no danger, but, as stated above, the supply is getting less daily. Until yesterday the supply was secured from Horsepen, supplemented with a portion of Reedy Fork. In less than a week Greensboro may be confronted with the same condition that obtains in Charlotte.

The large reservoir at Reedy Fork contains about 25,000,000 gallons of water and this in addition to the water supply at the city pumping station will supply the city for ten or twelve days in case there is no fire to cause an extra run on the supply. In addition to this the present supply at the intake will supply the daily consumption and in case the supply was cut off entirely the supply on hand would last something over a week. Should the streams get much lower the pumping of the water will be extremely difficult as with the large amount of sand in Reedy Fork some of it would necessarily, with the present intake arrangements, get into the pumps and cause trouble. In fact about the only way around this trouble would be to allow the cistern to get full and pump it out and then stop the pumps until the cistern filled again. This would enable the pumps to force into the reservoir about half the daily consumption.

In order to prevent the sand from running into the intake in such quantities Commissioner Foushee is considering the advisability of changing the course of Reedy Fork to the channel in which it formerly ran, the stream having deviated during the past few years. In this way the stream would join with Horsepen some distance above the intake, after running through several holes ten and fifteen feet in depth. These holes would take up all the sand until they were filled and there would be no trouble on this score at the intake.

While, as stated above, the present supply is sufficient, it is in order to state that every water consumer in the city should at once begin to curtail consumption in every possible way. In Charlotte two weeks ago such advice was given to citizens of that city, but they continued, or many did, to use water for sprinkling their lawns and now they are finding it extremely difficult to get drinking water. Yesterday the entire supply was cut off for a number of hours and orders were issued for all residents to construct surface closets, as the supply was not sufficient to operate water closets. Water is being hauled to that city. It behooves the citizens of Greensboro to take advantage of the Charlotte citizens' mistake and begin to cut down their consumption while there is time. As, is apparent, it is better to allow the lawns to wither and die than for the people who have no other means of procuring water other than from a city spigot to have their supply cut off entirely, forcing them to live with barely enough water to drink and none to wash their hands in, let alone take a bath. Again, a fire in Charlotte would sweep the entire town. They have no water for an emergency. It is hoped by the city officials here that the warning thus given will be heeded.

Death Near Tabernacle.

Robert L. Causey died yesterday morning at his home near Tabernacle church, in Clay township. He was 48 years of age but unmarried. For two years the deceased had been in failing health and shortly before his death began to sink rapidly, the end coming in a few hours.

The funeral services will be held at Tabernacle church this morning at 11 o'clock, the pastor, Rev. C. A. Cook conducting the services. The interment will follow in the graveyard adjoining the Tabernacle.
